90 STEVEN KENT Ghilmetti Vineyard, Cabernet Sauvignon, Livermore Valley 2008

Elements of black cherries, sweet oak, fresh herbs and a bit of forest-floor spice are nicely married in both the outgoing aromas and easy-to-access flavors of this one, and the wine's convincing Cabernet credentials are never in doubt. It is fairly supple on entry and generally well-balanced with fine-grained tannins showing on the latter-palate, and, while it does want four or five years to show its best, it is not one that needs protracted aging.
